This blog explores the probate fees in the Supreme Court of Victoria ('the Court') and how they may impact costs associated with making an application for a Grant of Representation.

Fees payable to the probate office are provided for by the Supreme Court (Fees) Regulations 2018 and increase annually on 1 July each year in accordance with the rate fixed by the Victorian Treasurer under the Monetary Units Act 2004. In 2024, the fees also increased on 18 November 2024.

The two fees listed below are the most common Court fees you will face in your probate application. A more comprehensive list of probate office fees can be found in the probate office fees list on the Court website.

The Court will not approve the making of a Grant of Probate or Letters of Administration unless the executor or proposed administrator has advertised their intention to apply for a grant.

The advertisement must be posted on Redcrest Probate.

As of 1 July 2026, the fee to post a notice of intention to apply for a Grant of Representation on Redcrest Probate is $38.00.

Probate and Letters of Administration filing fee

The filing fee for an application for a Grant of Representation depends on the gross value of the Victorian assets comprising the estate.

This means that if the estate includes interstate or overseas assets, the value of these assets is not included for the purposes of the calculation of the appropriate filing fee.

Moreover, the calculation is based on the gross value of the Victorian assets (that is, the value of the assets before taking account of any liabilities and expenses), and not the net value of the assets (that is, the value of the assets once any liabilities and expenses are considered).

How do costs and probate fees impact my application for probate or Letters of Administration?

If you have engaged a lawyer to represent you in your application for a Grant of Probate or Letters of Administration, the advertisement fee and the probate filing fee (which are known as disbursements) are separate to the fees charged by your lawyer for the work they carry out in the matter (known as professional fees).

Your lawyer will enter into a Cost Agreement with you which outlines how they will charge you in your matter.

Smith Family Law generally charges a fixed professional fee for Grants of Probate and Letters of Administration. This means we will charge you a set fee for the full scope of work and provide an estimate for any additional stages that may be required.

Generally, the fees will only fall outside the fixed fee if the scope of the work changes or additional work is required.

Disbursements, including the online advertisement and filing fee, are charged in addition to the fixed professional fee. By entering into a fixed fee arrangement, you will have certainty and know exactly how much your fees will be.

You can learn more about how we charge here.

Whilst it may be necessary for an executor to personally outlay these fees at the commencement of the matter, they are entitled to reimbursement from the estate funds as soon as they are available, following the Grant of Probate.
